Attention: The code done by Kiara was rushed to show the client something since it was a last minute change. The logic of the original code had to be changed to fit the client's needs. This is a separate branch for the next team to pick up on.

Code Done:

Everything related to the email templates were taken out of the email service controller and placed inside of the events controller. Kiara did try to keep everything inside of the email service controller so there wouldn't be so many functions inside of the event controller. However, Kiara was not able to get it to work like that so Kiara did the next best thing. The functions send_bulk_email and bulk_action were made to do the changes the client wanted. The function delete_bulk_guests was made to see if something was throwing the function off or if the function is just not working. However, the bulk delete function is not working as well. The bulk delete function was implemented by Kiara not something the client asked for.

The client would like everything to be inside of the event dashboard. There would be no email service tab. As seen above in my code, I have already taken out the email tab.

☐	Rishabh	Pagaria	<html>rishabh.pagaria@tamu.edu</html>	TAMU	R2 PATRON	A	5	2	false	Edit	Destroy

The only feature from the email service tab to be in the event dashboard would be the Email Templates Summary. The feature is already inside of the event dashboard. However some of the sub features are not working. Make sure to test out those features to verify what is working and what is not working.

The drop down to select the templates inside of the Email Templates Summary is already working and updates when templates are added and deleted. However when you select the template then hit send, the email is not sending. The emails being able to send is a crucial part of the application.
